

A junior research position (one year, renewable) supported by Fondazione Pisa is available at the CNR Institute of Genetic and Biomedical Research, Pisa, Italy.

The project will be carried out in the laboratory of Dr. Antonio Musio and is focused on the role of cohesin complex in human diseases. The ideal candidate is an enthusiastic and committed young researcher with experience in cell and molecular biology and genome-wide data analysis.

Informal enquiries and applications can be sent to Dr. Antonio Musio (antonio.musio@irgb.cnr.it) explaining why you are interested in joining the lab, describing briefly career goals and including CV and contact information for 2-3 references.